

THE POWER OF BRANDING:

PERSONAL AND CORPORATE BRANDING TO BUILD AND MAINTAIN REPUTATION

VIRTUAL 3-DAY
TRAINING PROGRAMME

INTRODUCTION

If you see someone drinking out of a white paper coffee cup with a green circle on it, do you know immediately where they ordered their beverage?

When you need to look something up online, do you say “I’m going to consult a search engine,” or do you say, “I’m going to Google it”? That is the power that strong branding can have.

Good brands are instantly identifiable, and great brands are so strong that they often become synonymous with the product or service they provide. A strong brand helps a business cut through the noise and establish itself in the marketplace while leaving a lasting impression with customers.

Personal brands are no different. Every professional wants to stand out from the crowd and get noticed, whether that be in a job search or as a thought leader in their industry. A strong personal brand can help a professional candidate make a lasting impression on those they meet, gain attention in the industry, and establish a professional as a trusted expert.

So how do you develop a brand, and use it to your advantage?
