Financial Technology has been going further! Into a new era in banking .

To keep up with technological breakthroughs Bank-FinTech partnerships are beginning to re-shape the financial services landscape.

Banks will transform alongside the shifts in how people work, live and play. These transformations will also be built into the bank of the future's effort to improve the financial wellbeing of customers, enhanced beyond today's capabilities.

By 2030 the interest in virtual reality technology (Metaverse) for customer interaction and training is growing by %25. Awareness of immersive technology and its potential applications has soared.

Investments in data analytics, financial services, and lending are higher in volume now, clearly indicating banks' desire to monetize their investments at the earliest possible instance.
